YELLOW FEVER.

FIFTEEN NEW CASES AND FIVE DEATHS AT MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 18.--Thirteen cases from all sources and five deaths are the epidemic figures for the past twenty-four hours.

Undertakers report five interments, all of which are white persons.

Miss Louisa Bedford, the new case at Bailey's station, twenty miles out on the Memphis and Charleston railway, is aged 14 years, daughter of H. L. Bedford.

About six weeks ago two members of Julian Bedford's family died of fever at that place. Since that time there has been no intercourse between the two families, who lived about a mile apart. Miss Bedford has been nowhere to become infected so that now experts are discussing her case as a probable case of spontaneous combustion, or in yellow fever vernacular, a gentine sporadic attack.

It having been decided as positive that the sickness at Concordia, Miss., about a hundred miles below on the river, is yellow fever, Dr. M. S. Croft has been sent there by the national board of health with instructions to draw on the Memphis Howards for nurses and supplies if needed.

The rumors of yellow fever at Hopefield, the Arkansas river post opposite Memphis, are contradicted by the assertion by an
